

Preliminary Web Course Description

*Please note: This is a preliminary web course description only. The department reserves the right to change without notice any information in this description. The final, binding course outline will be distributed in the first class of the semester.

School of English and Theatre Studies

Course Code: ENGL 4250	Course Title: 18 th and 19 th Century Literatures	Semester and Year of Offering: Winter 24
----------------------------------	---	---

Course Instructor: D. O'Quinn	Course Format: In-person
---	------------------------------------

Brief Course Synopsis:

How to do Things with Jane Austen

This capstone seminar will plunge students into an intensive study of four Jane Austen novels and the recent efflorescence in Austen scholarship. In many ways the scholarship on Austen can act as a window on recent developments in literary studies itself, thus the course will act as a summary of much of what students have been doing at the undergraduate level. We will also be looking at some adaptations of Austen's work because important contributions to the scholarly archive have focused on Austen's "afterlife". The title of the course is itself significant because we will be looking not only at how Austen's texts can be deployed in larger arguments about culture and society, but also at the representation and circulation of "things" within Austen's novels.

Methods of Evaluation and Weight:

Component	Weight (%)
Close reading	15
Article Analysis	20
Narrative Analysis	15
Paper Proposal	5
Prospectus	20
Final Paper

Texts and/or Resources Required (e.g. Internet access, specific textbook title, lab kit, etc.):

Jane Austen	Sense and Sensibility	Norton Critical Edition
	Pride and Prejudice	Norton Critical Edition
	Emma	Norton Critical Edition
	Persuasion	Norton Critical Edition
D. A. Miller	Jane Austen, or The Secret of Style	Princeton Univ Press

Information about mode of delivery:

In person lectures + seminars

Final Exam information:

N/A