Description

Brain Canada is pleased to be partnering with Alzheimer's Association (ALZ) to launch the Advancing Research on Care and Outcome Measurement 2.0 (ARCOM-2) funding program, an international and collaborative competition aimed at addressing significant gaps in care and outcome measurement and providing an opportunity to advance research so that care providers can ensure that they are implementing evidence-based practices and achieving desired outcomes.

Areas of interest for this program include, but are not limited to, care preferences, behavioral expressions, quality metrics, and systems of care in the area of Alzheimer's or other dementia. Through this partnership, Brain Canada will co-fund up to five (5) successful Canadian-led teams who meet peer review recommendations.

- Academic appointment (Assistant Professor and above or the equivalent at your institution);
- Major, peer-reviewed, external multi-year grant support on which the applicant is the principal investigator (PI); and
