Sponsor

Canadian Frailty Network in collaboration with New Brunswick Health Research Foundation (NBHRF) and the Canadian Institutes of Health Research (CIHR)

Description

This competition will fund innovative research proposals that address the ongoing concern of polypharmacy and related medication issues in older Canadians living with frailty. The projects funded are intended to be the first step in improving medication prescribing/deprescribing and overall medication management in older Canadians living with frailty.

CFN's Catalyst Grant Program supports scalable research studies including pilot, feasibility and translational studies that investigate novel and innovative approaches/methodologies/technologies. As with all CFN funded projects, studies must focus on older Canadians living with frailty and/or their families and caregivers.

Eligibility

Applicants must hold an academic or research appointment at a CFN network member institution, and must also be eligible to receive grant funding from CIHR, NSERC or SSHRC. Individuals from any discipline are encouraged to apply.

Funding Availability

Within the overall goal of medication optimization, CFN will prioritize funding in the following manner:

- CIHR Collaboration -- up to $300,000 will go to studies that address the practice of medication optimization and deprescription to reduce or eliminate drug-induced cognitive impairment;
- NBHRF Collaboration -- Multi-provincial studies are strongly encouraged to advance healthcare improvement across Canada, and for this competition CFN and NBHRF have created a separate fund to encourage researchers to include a NB-based research component in their Catalyst studies.
- CFN Medication Optimization Summit topics -- CFN recently consulted with stakeholders across Canada to identify research priority areas for medication optimization for older
