Description

Canadian Frailty Knowledge is pleased to announce the 2019 Knowledge Translation (KT) Grant Competition. Designed to bridge the gap between evidence and practice, they are looking for scaleable projects that initiate or improve the implementation and/or adoption of evidence to improve the health and functioning of older adults living with frailty and/or their family/friend caregivers.

For the 2019 KT competition, CFN has identified two priorities. The scope of the projects may vary depending on the setting's readiness and capacity for change and/or the KT strategy.

1. Enhancing integrated models of care to improve frailty outcomes. This priority is intended to support KT and implementation projects focused on practice and service. This includes initiatives aimed to improve health and functioning of older adults with frailty and/or the accessibility and/or quality of care in any setting. For example, using prompts in primary care to systematically screen older adults for frailty, and provide thorough assessments with appropriate referrals for patients with frailty.
2. Strategies for improving functional outcomes in older adults living with frailty and/or their caregivers. This priority focuses on KT and implementation projects that provide quality care for older adults with frailty to improve their health outcomes, which may include helping them stay active, slowing the progression of frailty, and/or reducing the need for early entry to long-term care. For example, using pre-habilitation or reablement to improve physical function or quality of life for older adults with frailty.

Eligibility

The 2019 KT competition is open to all interested investigators. Prior CFN funding is not required. For CFN Network Investigators, submitted KT proposals should not overlap the end-of-grant KT activities identified in any previously funded CFN project. KT projects proposed must address one of the priority areas (see above), and must have multidisciplinary, multiinstitutional teams.
