

New Educational Resources to Support Indigenous Research

Research Services Office in collaboration with Indigenous Initiatives has created a new set of FAQs and information resources to help support and guide Indigenous research. The information is intended primarily for both Indigenous and non-Indigenous researchers in the early stages of learning about Indigenous research. Also included is information for all researchers on suggested approaches to indigenization in research.

This resource directly responds to priorities named in the University of Guelph's Indigenous Initiatives Strategy, Bi-Naagwad – It Comes Into View.

Visit the Conducting Indigenous Research web page.

Click here to learn more about this alert Alert Classifications Category:
Research Management and Support

Disciplines:

Health and Life Sciences

Humanities

Information and Communications Technology

Physical Sciences and Engineering

Social Sciences

Source

URL:<https://www.uoguelph.ca/research/alerts/content/new-educational-resources-support-indigenous-research>