Please note: The new Investigator Awards Program is not available in 2022-24. All independent investigators are encouraged to apply to the Pilot Project Grants Program.

Description

A number of funding opportunities exist for research focused on Parkinson's disease. Information on the individual funding opportunities can be found on the Parkinson Canada Apply for Funding [2]website.

A Request for Application(RFA) document is attached to each funding opportunity description, along with a link to the online Research Application System [3]. Application deadlines are also listed with each description and on the Important Dates page of the Research section of this website.

All applicants are encouraged to read the Application Guidelines [4]

Eligibility

Applications for research grants will be accepted from individuals from a broad spectrum of health-related communities and sectors, including, but not limited to, researchers, scholars and health professionals. At this time, fellowships are offered for biomedical research/clinical training only. Those currently funded by Parkinson Canada or with pending final reports from a Parkinson Canada grant or award are not eligible to apply.

Additional eligibility criteria may be outlined in the applicable RFA
