Description

Calling all U of G researchers: students, staff and faculty!

Learn how to use photography to tell your research story. Sign up for one of two free workshops: at the University of Guelph Arboretum or at the Ontario Dairy Research Centre in Elora.

Each workshop consists of a one-hour session, followed by an optional 30-minute Q&A with instructor Richelle Forsey, Photography Department Technician for the U of G School of Fine Art and Music.

Participants will explore:

- How to see and frame compositions to create interest in your images
- How to use light, focus and exposure to your advantage
- How to get the most out of your "camera"

This event is presented by the Ontario Agri-Food Innovation Alliance.
