

Research-related COVID-19 Frequently Asked Questions (FAQs)

The Office of Research is committed to supporting University of Guelph's research community as our institution addresses the evolving outbreak of coronavirus COVID-19. The health and safety of University of Guelph researchers and our broader group of research stakeholders remain top priority for the Office of Research.

Researchers should follow the research-related COVID-19 FAQs and updates on the U of G Research website.

Here you will find updates and answers to frequently asked questions. The Office of Research will continue to monitor the 2019 novel coronavirus situation and provide research-related updates on this page as needed.

We continue to provide existing research services to ensure research continuity, thus, all Office of Research units (Office of Research Services; Research Innovation Office; and the Office of Research, Agri-Food Partnership) remain operational.

During these exceptional circumstances service delivery may be delayed, and we appreciate your patience.
