For More Information

Please see the SSHRC website [1] for more information.

Description

Insight Development Grants support research in its initial stages. The grants enable the development of new research questions, as well as experimentation with new methods, theoretical approaches and/or ideas. Funding is provided for short-term research development projects, of up to two years, proposed by individuals or teams. Insight Development Grants foster research in its early stages, but are not intended to support large-scale initiatives.

Within the Insight Development Grants funding opportunity, funding is available for two distinct categories of scholars: emerging scholars [2] and established scholars [3]:

Emerging scholars: Funding supports high-quality research projects to develop new research questions &/or approaches. Such projects may build on & further the applicant's (or team's) graduate work &/or represent a continuation of their overall research trajectory.

Established scholars: Funding provides support to explore new research questions &/or approaches that are distinct from the applicant's previous/ongoing research. Research projects should be clearly delimited & in the early stages of the research process. Insight Development Grant funding is not intended to support ongoing research for established scholars.
