Challenge Statement Handbook [3]

Description

The Blue Economy Challenge calls for innovators, entrepreneurs, designers, NGOs and academics to rethink advances in aquaculture to provide solutions that ensure both sustainable development and environmental sustainability. This challenge aims to find solutions to three important issues of aquaculture: 1) Rethinking feed for aquaculture 2) New ocean products and 3) Sustainable design by encouraging innovations that will revolutionize aquaculture in the developing world with a focus on the Indian Ocean region, where transformations in aquaculture can help eradicate poverty, end hunger, and preserve ecosystems.

All solutions must be feasible and suitable for aquaculture in a developing country context with specific applicability to the Indian Ocean. DFAT is looking for solutions that are beyond a theoretical concept. Submissions can be either of these prototypes, where a novel idea is being tested for the first time, or solutions, where existing ideas are being trialed in a different context. The blue Economy Challenge will not accept submissions that are lab bench scale, theoretical design, or limited to ideas on paper. Judges will select solutions that are transformative, impactful, scalable, sustainable, feasible, and potentially profitable.
